DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-11 and 19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Logothetis et al US 5,877,264 in view of Kurasawa et al. US 2002/0040090.
3. The rejection set for the under 35 USC 103 in the paper mailed 1/2/08 is deemed proper and is herein repeated.
4. Applicants remarks filed 3/27/08 have been fully considered but have been found not persuasive.
5. Applicants that the present invention is directed to fluoro-polymers having a carbonyl group and that these polymers, when combined with the claimed carbon fibril, have improved conductivity. This is not persuasive. The fluoro-polymers of Logothetis et al. contain the carbonyl groups and are the same as those polymers claimed. Any comparison with polymers not having the carbonyl groups is moot because the art shows the carbonyl groups. Any probative showing must compare the closest prior art with the claimed invention. The showings currently of record fail to do so.
6. It is further understood that polymers having polar groups, such as carbonyl groups, are inherently more conductive than similar polymers that do not have the polar groups. Applicants showing of record simply confirm this understanding.

7. Applicants then argue that the Kurasawa patent suggests chlorinated olefins and does not suggest the claimed fluoro-polymers. This is not persuasive. The fibrils are known and their properties well established. One having ordinary skill in the art understands the attendant properties of the claimed fibrils. The fibrils are not functioning any differently in the claimed system than in the polymer systems of the prior art. One of ordinary skill in the art has a reasonable expectation of the resultant properties. Further, the carbon fibrils are not mutually exclusive of the carbon black disclosed in Logothetis. This is to say that one of ordinary skill would be motivated to use carbon fibrils where the logothetis calls for carbon black.

Conclusion

8. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
